

PRAISES MISSOURI'S
STAND IN ATHLETICS

University's Attitude Has Won Wide Approval,
Says Dr. Thilly.

THE STUDENTS MUST HELP

Faculty Alone Cannot Solve Problems That Confront
American Schools.

"The attitude of the University of Missouri toward athletics is praised wherever you go, all over the country," said Dr. Frank Thilly, professor of ethics at Cornell, in his address at the University assembly this morning. Dr. Thilly spoke on "Modern University Problems."

"There is always the danger of an overemphasis of athletics in the schools," he said. "A few experts get the real benefits of the exercise, while the majority of the students sit on the benches and exercise their lungs. I think the University of Missouri treats the problem in the correct way."

"The relations between the faculty and the students have become far more sympathetic, I think," Dr. Thilly continued. "There has been a great increase in student activities, particularly along social lines. The old pranks, such as leading a cow up into the steeple, are things of the past."

"There has been a fight in the universities against old conservatism. We have shattered the old curriculum and are now picking up the pieces. We have tried the elective system and have found that it is really no system. In the search for the tastes of the students, we have found that the primary cause is idleness. Now we are trying to strike a compromise between the old and the new."

"Then, too, there has been danger in the overemphasis of the practical. The idea has seemed to be that the first thing is to get the student out into the world and making money. The theoretical has been shunted over. As a result, a great many people are leaving their professions. The only way to great practical achievement is through a study of the theoretical. Such has been the ideal of the European universities, and we must acknowledge their success."

"The real purpose of education is twofold: first, to fit the student for his calling or profession; second, to acquaint him with mankind. This cannot be done in a hurry, and we have all the time before us that we could want."

"The university must be democratic. There is too much responsibility for one man, or one group of men, to carry. The faculty cannot accomplish it alone. You students must help us solve the problems. If we want anything, we must all dig for it."

Dr. Thilly Speaks Again Tomorrow.

Dr. Frank W. Thilly, professor of ethics at Cornell University, will speak to the students in philosophy and all others interested in Room 67 of Academic hall at 12 o'clock tomorrow.

FOLLING TENT BLOWN DOWN

Election Judges in Fourth Ward Got a Wetting.

The tent in Hill street and Conley street, used as the fourth ward voting place, was blown down in the wind storm this morning. J. P. McNamee, W. P. Moore, W. Barkdale, James Wright and C. B. Rollins, election judges and clerks, were in the tent at the time. None was hurt but all received a wetting. The ballots were kept intact and were not lost or scattered when the tent went over. After the storm subsided the tent was again staked up. It is being used as a polling place this afternoon.

URGES CHRISTIANS TO VOTE

Man's Duty to Take Interest in Civic Affairs, Says Rev. M. A. Hart.

"It is not only consistent for a Christian man as well as a non-Christian man to take an active interest in civic affairs—it is his manifest duty," said the Rev. M. A. Hart at the Christian church Sunday night in opening his address on the duties of the citizen.

"One of the curious phenomena of Venetian history," says Ruskin, "is the vitality of religion in family life and its deadness in political life." This is not only a curious phenomenon, but a glaring inconsistency.

"I have not taken a partisan interest in the local political contest, because I believed I could do better service in the pulpit, with Christ for my leader. When I go to the polls to vote I intend to be governed by the principles which I believe Jesus would have me governed by, and I ask you, my fellow citizens, to take Jesus with you when you cast your vote."

"The underlying cause for the great moral awakening in civic affairs throughout this nation is that Jesus is coming more and more into the everyday life of mankind."

FOR M. U. INTERESTS

Members of the Legislative Committee Explain Work at Assembly.

A desire to help the University of Missouri in every way possible was expressed in talks at assembly this morning by the members of the committee of the General Assembly who are in Columbia to investigate conditions at the university. G. A. Auerwald of Jefferson county; J. W. Hensley of Gasconade county and J. W. Hardesty of Monroe county, spoke.

Mr. Hensley said:

"I am in heartfelt sympathy with the experiments and the work as carried on by the University of Missouri. When saying this I speak for the committee and the General Assembly. The legislature and the committee which was appointed to investigate the management of the university are friends of the university. We want this university to stand at the top among universities and if it is possible it shall be made to do so. The university is for the good of Missouri and for the good of the students. It is our desire to hold up the hand of the president of the university. We want to encourage the university and give it the financial assistance it needs. The faculty and the members of the faculty are not responsible for the difficulties which sometimes arise. We sometimes get negligent and neglectful after years and years of service, that is human nature. We want to serve the university by looking after its interests."

Mr. Hardesty said: "Mr. Hensley has expressed my feelings in regard to the university. I shall do nothing, say nothing or sign nothing which will hinder the university or the welfare of the state of Missouri. Most of the complaint against the university comes from the cross-roads and it arises because of misunderstandings. We are here to correct these misunderstandings. Every act will be for the benefit of the university. I have taught a number of years and some of my former students are in the University. I know them and I know their families. I would not think of striking a blow that would hinder the progress of any of my friends or students."

Mr. Auerwald said: "This is my first visit to Columbia and to the state university. And it is indeed a revelation. I am proud of the university and want to see it advance. Most people who are called upon to make a speech have something to say and know how to say it. I cannot make a speech and I suggest that Mr. Hensley who is a lawyer and who can talk more fluently than I, be called upon to address you."

At the close of the assembly "Old Missouri" was sung.

SOME MORE CITIZENS SUMMONED

TARIFF ACTION BY CLUB WOMEN HERE

Protest Against Payne Bill
Probably Will be Made
This Afternoon.

"SHOULD BE DEFEATED"

Tuesday Club to "Line up"
With Similar Bodies
Over Country.

When the Tuesday club of Columbia meets this afternoon, it is probable that the organization will "line up" with the other women's clubs of the country and take some action against the Payne tariff bill now before Congress. Just what action will be taken has not been decided on, but most of the members are in favor of entering a protest against the measure and the question will undoubtedly be discussed.

The Payne bill, if passed, will raise the tariff on gloves, hosiery, stockings and other articles of clothing for women and girls. All over the country the women are protesting. In the large cities the women's clubs have petitioned Congress not to pass the bill and have written letters to the members of the House and Senate.

Mrs. H. J. Waters, Mrs. Lizzie Morris, Mrs. Anita McAfee and Mrs. John Sykes, members of the Tuesday club, say they believe their club should take some action.

"The question will be brought up today," said Mrs. Morris this morning. "The women should do all they can to defeat the bill."

The Fortnightly club will not consider the tariff question, it is said.

"This bill should not be taken up by the women's clubs," said Mrs. Walter McNab Miller. "Their influence will become null and void if they allow themselves to be pushed into such affairs."

Lawmakers Abandon High Tax on Gloves and Stockings.

By United Press.
WASHINGTON, April 6.—The women of America won a substantial victory over the Washington lawmakers this morning, when the latter surrendered the proposed high tariff on women's and children's gloves and stockings in response to the indignant wave of protest sweeping over the country. The Senate committee on finance voted to substitute a moderate rate. The House leaders agreed to the change.

IN A MOVING HOUSE

Family is Quite Comfortable in the Building on Rollers.

Why vacate a house while it is being moved? Why remove the furniture? J. L. Stephens, a lawyer, has just proved that it is useless. He has had moved a large, two-story house weighing more than 200 tons, containing his family and household goods, a distance of 250 feet. The house is situated on the corner of West Broadway and McNamee avenue. The family occupied the house, and hardly noticed that it was being moved. It required four days to move the house.

Mrs. Stephens said: "We experienced no inconvenience whatever in the moving. There were no accidents, except that a little of the plastering fell. We have a piano, but it did not get out of tune. We had a fire continually and cooked every day."

The house formerly was on the north-west corner of the lot and was moved in order to put it on a line with other houses on Broadway. It was built before that part of town was settled.

The job was finished Saturday morning, and the building is resting on stagers and jacks ready for the foundation.

BEST COW IN THE WORLD IS DEAD

Fall in the Ditch Fatal to Champion Butter and Milk Producer.

HER WONDERFUL RECORD

In a Year 3-Year-Old Cow
Furnished 712 Pounds of Butter.

Pedro's Estella, the 3-year-old Jersey cow which held the world's record for production of butter and milk, died yesterday at the state farm. The cow fell into a small ditch on her back, and was unable to get up. She died before she was found. When cows were driven to the barn as usual last night, Pedro's Estella was missing. A search was made and the cow was found in the ditch.

"The death of the cow is the greatest loss the College of Agriculture ever had," said Dean H. J. Waters this morning.

C. H. Eckles, professor of dairy husbandry, said the cow would sell at auction for about $5,000.

Her Own Weight in Butter.

Pedro's Estella, bred and owned by the Missouri Agricultural College at Columbia, produced in one year, 712 pounds of butter, or practically her own weight, in butter, surpassing all previous world's records by more than 100 pounds. This one cow would have supplied the tables of seven Missouri families of five persons each with butter in the entire year and would have supplied in addition a large amount of buttermilk and skim milk for cooking and drinking.

If this cow's milk had been sold at the average net price commanded by milk in Columbia, seven cents a quart, her gross return for the year would have been $414.75. The cost of feed consumed by Pedro's Estella in the year, and on which she produced $414.75 worth of milk and cream and butter, was only $75. This cow would have kept an average student in the University, paying all of his expenses for books, clothing, tuition; paid for the feed she consumed, and allowed books and clothing for the small brother at home.

The average cow of the state produces about 10 pounds of butter in a year. This little Jersey on the Agricultural Farm produced 712 pounds of butter, or more than five ordinary cows' yield.

Milked Three Times a Day.

If it were possible to substitute this sort of a cow for those now on the average farm, four out of every five cows might be sold for beef without affecting the total butter production. Instead, therefore, of 100,000 men being required to do the milking, 20,000 would be sufficient. The average butter sells for about 20 cents a pound, which makes the return for the average cow about $28 per year. On account of the improved methods employed at the Agricultural College the butter produced there sold last year for an average of thirty-three cents per pound. The actual return for the butter alone produced by this record cow last year was therefore $235, or $207 more than the average cow brings her owner.

This cow was fed an average of about twelve pounds of grain a day, together with about fifteen pounds of corn silage and ten pounds of alfalfa hay, throughout the year, and in summer green alfalfa, green clover and green corn and fresh bluegrass were alternated. The grain consisted of about one-fourth corn, chop, one-fourth wheat bran, one-fourth ground oats, one-eighth linseed oilmeal and the remaining on eighth either middlings, gluten, hominy feed or germ meal for the sake of variety. At no time was she fed to the full limit of her appetite or to the point that would in the slightest degree injure her health or affect her future usefulness. She was fed and milked three times a day, 4 o'clock in the morning, 12 o'clock noon, and 8 o'clock in the evening, thus dividing the twenty-four periods into three equal parts.

E. F. AMMERMAN TO LEAVE HERE

Pacific Express Agent Resigns After Thirty Years' Service.

After thirty years as agent for the Pacific Express company at Columbia, E. F. Ammerman will quit the company's service Saturday. He will depart about April 15 for Oklahoma City to make his home with his daughter, Mrs. W. F. Wilson.

He has two children here, Joseph Ammerman, assistant secretary of the University of Missouri, and Miss Nora Ammerman, a University student. His wife died recently.

STARR ON THROWING KISSES

Chicago U. Man Says Americans Don't Understand the Art.

CHICAGO, April 6.—Professor Frederick Starr of the University of Chicago, who attracted attention recently by a prophecy that former President Roosevelt would never return alive from Africa, has again come into public notice, this time as an exponent of the fine art of "kiss throwing."

"Young men of this country do not know how to throw a kiss gracefully," he says in a lecture prepared for students on "Mexico Today."

"I takes a young Mexican to perform the act gracefully. He brings the tips of his fingers together, touches them gently with his lips, and spreading his hand out as he makes the throw, waits five sweet kisses to his lady love by five different routes."

PRINCE SERVES U. S.

G. J. Salem, Alumnus of the University, Appointed to Diplomatic Post.

President Taft has appointed George J. Salem, one-time Egyptian prince, an alumnus of the University of Missouri, to the diplomatic service. Telegrams to this effect were received in Columbia this morning.

Salem asked that he be appointed secretary of the American legation either at Cairo or Tangier. It is not known which appointment he received.

Salem came to the University of Missouri from his home in Egypt several years ago and took a course in agriculture. He was graduated in 1906. He failed of returning to Egypt and leading a revolutionary movement to obtain better government and more liberty for his people. He changed his mind and went into the real estate business in Chicago.

Last year he returned to Columbia and took out his naturalization papers. Dr. R. H. Jesse and Walter Williams recommended him for citizenship.

A SHERLOCK HOLMES HERE

This Shoe Store Robbed by a Boy,
Proprietor Says.

The shoe store of S. H. Levy was robbed last night. Six dollars and two pair of tan shoes were taken.

"A boy robbed this store," exclaimed Mr. Levy when he came down to the store this morning.

"How do you know?" asked a clerk.

"Why look at this?" said Mr. Levy as he picked up a piece of glass. It bore the print of a small hand. The glass had been broken from a window in the rear of the store. "And the robbers were negroes," continued Mr. Levy, "for I haven't sold a pair of those bond tan shoes like those they took for a long time. The boy has crawled through the window and let in his companion at the back door."

EARLY ELECTION
VOTING IS LIGHT

In Three Wards the Count
Showed a Falling Off in Ballots Cast.

THE STORM INTERFERED

Head of Each Ticket Claims
Election but Won't Estimate Majority.

Voting in the municipal election, notwithstanding the interest taken in the campaign this spring, was not heavy this morning. In fact, in the first, third and fourth wards, the vote was very light. Up to about 11 o'clock there were no disturbances of any kind at the polling places.

The wind and rain storm that came up at noon kept many away from the polls. Instead of stopping to vote on the way home to luncheon business men looked at the threatening sky and hastened to shelter. The judges of election expect a heavy vote this afternoon, however. The head of each ticket says he will be elected but will not estimate his majority.

Too Early to Predict, He Says.

"It is too early to predict the results of the election," said Stanley Smith, candidate for mayor on the Democratic ticket at 10 o'clock this morning. "I have been to the polling places of each of the four wards this morning, and I found everything favorable. In every ward I was told that we were leading. Columbia has always rolled up big Democratic majorities, and the people will not desert the party now. All indications point to a big victory for the Democrats."

Dr. W. E. Holden, candidate for mayor of Columbia on the Citizens' ticket, said this morning:

"Things look pretty favorable for us. Early in the campaign the betting was with odds in favor of the other side, but I believe that most of the betting against us ceased some time ago. I take this as a good sign. But it's all a bad job. There's no end of trouble from start to finish. I am glad that today's the end. I think this race will be enough for me."

Vote in the Wards.

In the first ward, the number of votes cast was 150 at 10 o'clock this morning. This is a comparatively light vote. The judges expect more than 700 votes to be polled. There were no disturbances of any kind. The politicians are working hard with carriages and candidate cards. Only 143 votes were cast in the school election in the same period. This has previously been a Democratic ward, and of course the Democrats claim it.

At the courthouse, the polling place of the second ward, the vote cast up to 10:30 o'clock was a little heavier than usual. At that hour 130 votes had been cast. Many of the candidates were canvassing votes in the neighborhood of the polls. Both sides are confident of victory, and both claimed a majority of votes cast.

The voting in the third ward was very slow this morning. At 9 o'clock only seventy-five votes were cast and at 10:30 o'clock only 165. This ward usually polls three hundred and seventy-two votes. S. H. Levy, Democratic candidate for councilman, was at the polls. He had been keeping count of the voters and he gave the Democrats a two to one majority so far. Last year this ward was overwhelmingly Democratic.

About 170 votes had been cast in the fourth ward at 1:30 this afternoon. The Democratic ticket was in the lead, it is said.

NOT LOSING SLEEP, SAYS REMLEY

He is Confident His Appointment Will Be Confirmed.

F. A. Remley said today that he had received a letter from Senator Warner, saying there was no doubt that he would be confirmed as postmaster.

"I have noticed in the St. Louis papers," said Mr. Remley, "that there has been no confirmation of postmasters since Senator Warner recommended me for the position. There has been quite a fight on my appointment, but I have not been losing any sleep over the matter. This is strictly Senator Warner's fight, as he has made it without any request on my part."

FIRST STRAW HAT OF SEASON

"No Joking, Spring is Surely Here,"
Says the Wearer.

The first straw hat of the season appeared on Broadway this morning. It was a Panama of regulation size and conveyed a real "springy" impression. "There is no joke about it," said the wearer. "Spring is here."
